A Brief Preview

Playing the final leg of a three-game road trip, and the second game in as many days, the Sacramento State men's basketball team (8-16, 3-8) returns to action today when the team travels to Bozeman, Mont., for a matchup with Montana State (9-14, 6-4). The Hornets were in Missoula, Mont., last night where the team was outscored 6-0 over the final 59 seconds before finally losing to Montana, 76-69.

Tonight's game marks the second back-to-back scenario the Hornets will have faced since Big Sky play began. Sacramento State split its last back-to-back, losing to Eastern Washington on Jan. 25 before defeating Portland State at home on Jan. 26. Sacramento State and Weber State are the only two teams in the Big Sky that have been asked to play a pair of back-to-backs this season.

The Hornets have lost eight of their last nine games and six of those losses have come by double digits. Over the nine-game stretch, the team has struggled in three of the most important aspects of basketball – offense, defense and rebounding. Sacramento State is shooting just 39.1 percent (233-596) from the field while allowing the opposition to shoot 54.3 percent (259-477). In addition, the team is being outrebounded by 11.4 boards per game (42.2-30.8) and opponents are shooting 43.1 percent (50-116) from beyond the three-point arc. Four of the losses during the slide have come at home against Big Sky competition.

In addition, the second half has been extremely rough on the Hornets during the last nine games. Sacramento State has been within striking distance in nearly every game, but opponents are shooting .603 (135-224) in the second half compared to just a .362 mark (112-309) for the Hornets.

Sacramento State, which at one point was 7-8 overall and 2-1 in the Big Sky after a home victory over Montana on Jan. 4, is now 2.5 games back of the sixth and final Big Sky Tournament spot with five games remaining on the regular season schedule. If the Hornets want to reach the Big Sky's postseason event for the fifth consecutive year, the team needs to start making up ground immediately, beginning tonight at Montana State.

The Hornets have had success in Bozeman, defeating the Bobcats three times in the teams' last five meetings on MSU's home floor. That includes a 71-70 victory in last year's Big Sky Tournament quarterfinals. Both of the Hornets' losses in Bozeman over that stretch have come by five points or less. Overall, the Hornets are 10-17 all-time against Montana State, and have won six of the last nine meetings in the series. Tonight's meeting marks the first of two straight games against Montana State, as the Bobcats will play the Hornets in Sacramento next week on Valentine's Day.

Thursday's game will be broadcast live on KSAC 1240 AM, hornetsports.com and bigskytv.org with Steve McElroy calling all the action. McElroy is in his 10th season as radio voice of Hornet basketball.

Meet The Coach

The second-longest tenured coach in the Big Sky Conference (trailing only Northern Arizona's Mike Adras), Jerome Jenkins is currently in his seventh season at the helm of the Sacramento State basketball program. The basketball veteran is the 12th head coach in the 59-year history of the program. Since taking over a struggling program that had averaged just 4.1 wins per year from the team's first season of Div. I play (1991-92) until his hiring, Jenkins has transformed the program into one that consistently challenges for the Big Sky title and has averaged 11.0 wins per season during his tenure.

In fact, Sacramento State is one of just three teams that have reached the Big Sky Tournament each of the last four years (Montana and Eastern Washington are the others). This comes after the Hornets failed to reach the Big Sky's postseason event during each of the team's first six years in the league (1996-pres.).

The Hornets have seen their Big Sky record substantially improve under Jenkins' guidance: 2-14 in 2000-01; 3-11 in 2001-02; 5-9 in 2002-03; 7-7 in 2003-04; 8-6 in 2004-05, and finally 5-9 last year after losing six games by five points or less. In addition, the Hornets' overall record has continued to rise during his tenure (5-22 in 2000-01, 9-19 in 2001-02, 12-17 in 2002-03, 13-15 in 2003-04, 12-16 in 2004-05, and 15-15 last year).

The program has graduated 10 players during Jenkins' tenure, a dramatic improvement from the years prior to his arrival. In fact, two additional players (Chris Lange and Zane Beekman) are on pace to graduate this spring.

The Hornets have reached the Big Sky Tournament semifinals twice under Jenkins, and hosted tournament quarterfinal games in 2003-04 and 2004-05. Last year, Sacramento State upset Montana State in Bozeman in the quarters before falling to regular-season champion Northern Arizona in the semis.

The 39-year old coach came to Sacramento State prior to the 1999-2000 season and served as the team's top assistant coach that year. Jenkins previously had worked two seasons as an assistant at Eastern Washington (1997-99). Prior to working at EWU, he spent four years at Diablo Valley College, where he was an assistant coach (1993-95) and associate head coach (1995-97).

A native of Los Angeles, Jenkins was an all-conference point guard at L.A. City College as a freshman before playing his sophomore season at Southwestern Oregon CC. He then transferred to Regis University in Denver, Colo., where he was a two-time all-conference selection.

A Look At The Last Game

Montana scored the game's last six points and went a perfect 6-for-6 from the free throw line over the final 33 seconds to defeat Sacramento State, 76-69, Wednesday evening at Dahlberg Arena.

The Hornets used two steals, a tip-in by Angel Alamo, a three-pointer from Alex Bausley, and a lay-up from Davon Roberts to slice an eight-point deficit (70-62) down to one point (70-69) with 1:00 to play. After a Montana timeout, the Grizzlies' Jordan Hasquet committed a turnover on the ensuing inbounds pass giving the Hornets a chance to take the lead. Bausley, who finished the game just 4-of-19 from the field, missed a runner in the lane with 51 seconds left that would have given Sacramento State a one-point advantage.

Montana grabbed the rebound, and Hornet senior Haron Hargrave inexplicably committed a foul on Cameron Rundles just over the halfcourt line with 33 seconds left on the game clock and 17 left on the shot clock. Rundles knocked down both free throws to put the Grizzlies back on top, 72-69. The Hornets had a chance to tie, but junior Kris Groce's three-point attempt with 20 seconds left was off the mark and bounced out of bounds. Montana's Stuart Mayes was immediately fouled on the inbounds pass and made both of his free throws to push the lead to 74-69 with 19 seconds left. Sacramento State missed two more three-point attempts down the stretch and Austin Swift put things away with a pair of free throws with four seconds remaining.

Sacramento State took its largest lead of the second half at five points (57-52) on a Roberts putback with 8:11 remaining, but the Grizzlies responded with an 18-5 run over the next 6:24 to take their largest lead of the second half at 70-62. No team led by more than 10 points during the game.

New Floor General

After practicing with the team (but seeing no game action) for a year and a half, junior point guard Kris Groce (pronounced GROSS) made his debut on Jan. 4 against Montana, and helped the Hornets to a victory by tallying 10 assists, the most by a Sacramento State player this year.

Through the first six games of the season while nursing an ankle he sprained in practice three days before his debut, Groce got off to a slow start, averaging just 4.5 points, 1.2 rebounds and 4.2 assists while shooting 28.6 percent from the field.

Hornets Under Jenkins

Under head coach Jerome Jenkins, the Hornets are one of just three teams that have reached the Big Sky Conference Tournament each of the last four years (Montana and Eastern Washington are the others). The top six teams in the nine-member league advance to the postseason.

However, over the last four games, Groce has picked up his game substantially. During the four-game stretch, Groce is averaging 17.0 points, 3.3 rebounds and 5.0 assists while shooting 46.7 percent (21-45) from the floor. He has scored at least 12 points in all four games, including a season-best 21 on Wednesday at Montana

Overall, the team's only true point guard is now averaging 9.5 points, 2.0 rebounds and 4.5 assists while averaging 28.2 minutes per game.

Standing all of 5-10 and weighing 150 pounds, Groce transferred from the University of Hawai'i during the summer of 2005, and sat out last year while redshirting because of NCAA transfer rules. He was academically ineligible during this year's fall semester.

371 And Counting

Sacramento State has made at least one three-pointer in 371 consecutive games, a streak which dates back 13 years. The last time the Hornets did not make a three-pointer occurred on Nov. 28, 1993, when the team went 0-for-6 from beyond the arc in an 85-57 loss at Montana State.

Book It

Consistently one of the most athletic teams in the Big Sky, Sacramento State has led the conference in steals every year since Jerome Jenkins became head coach of the program in 2000-01 (a span of six consecutive years). That won't change this season as the team is easily leading the conference with 10.42 steals per game. That mark is on pace to break the program record of 9.96, set in both 2000-01 and 2004-05.

The Hornets have forced at least 20 turnovers on 12 occasions this year, and the team now leads the Big Sky in turnover margin at +5.92 per game. The next closest team in the Big Sky is Portland State at +1.80.

Lineup Shuffle

Sacramento State head coach Jerome Jenkins has used a different starting lineup seven times in the last nine games trying to find a good combination of players to right the ship.

With Donald Thomas getting his first start of the season Saturday at Idaho State, all 13 players that have appeared in a Sacramento State uniform have now started at least one game this season.

Overall, Jenkins has used 11 different starting lineups this season. Senior Alex Bausley has been the only constant in the lineup, starting all 24 games this season.

Simple Math

• Sacramento State's win over Portland State marked the first time all season the Hornets had defeated an opponent that entered the game with a record above .500. Sacramento State is currently 1-6 against teams above .500, and 1-5 against teams at the .500 mark.

• Conversely, the Hornets are 6-5 against opponents entering the game with a sub-.500 record.

• Sacramento State is 7-4 this season when it has limited its opposition to 80 points or less, and 1-12 when opponents score more than 80 points.

• The Hornets are 0-12 when scoring under 74 points.

• The Hornets are a perfect 8-0 when leading or tied with 5:00 remaining, and 8-1 when tied or leading with 10:00 left in the second half. Conversely, the team has yet to win a game (0-16) when trailing with five minutes remaining.

• Sacramento State is 0-13 when opponents shoot better than 50.0 percent from the field, and 8-3 when limiting the opposition to a field goal percentage of .500 or below.

Woods To Redshirt

After being projected as the team's starting shooting guard prior to the season by head coach Jerome Jenkins, senior Clark Woods is now redshirting this season with a fractured knee. Woods played sparingly in two games (Nov. 12 at New Mexico, Nov. 14 vs. USF) before doctors decided to shut him down the rest of the season because of the injury. Woods averaged 7.3 points per game last season, including starting each of the team's last 17 games.

A Close Game, What's That?

With the exception of four games that have been decided by four points or less (the Hornets are 3-1 in those contests), every other Sacramento State game this season has been decided by at least seven points. Fifteen of the team's 16 losses have come by seven points or worse, and five of the eight wins have come by at least eight points. This comes in sharp contrast to last season when the Hornets finished 5-8 in games decided by five points or less.

The Big Three

Sacramento State's top three scorers all average between 13 and 14 points per game. They are comprised of Loren Leath (13.7), Haron Hargrave (13.4) and Alex Bausley (13.2). One of the three has led the Hornets in scoring in 20 of the team's 24 games this year. Angel Alamo led the team in scoring against Illinois State and on the road against Northern Arizona, and Kris Groce has led the team each of the last two games. Interestingly enough, Sacramento State is 0-6 when Bausley leads the team in scoring.

Star-Grave

After missing the first three games of the season, senior combo guard Haron Hargrave has consistently been one the team's top scorers, currently averaging 13.4 points. In addition, he is averaging 5.23 trips to the free throw line per game, converting on 81.1 percent (90-111) from the charity stripe. That includes a 12-of-13 performance vs. Northern Colorado.

Including his last second, buzzer beating three-pointer in the Hornets' overtime win against Pacific, the Queens, N.Y., native has scored in double figures 13 times and has led the team in scoring eight times. That also consists of four 20-point games, including a career-high 31 at Denver.

However, like most of the team, Hargrave has struggled from the field over the last nine games, shooting 27.9 percent (24-86) and 30.0 (15-50) from beyond the arc over that span. That includes a .185 (5-for-27) mark over his last three games.

Among Big Sky leaders (all games), Hargrave is fifth in steals (1.48 spg), sixth in free throw percentage (.811), 10th in three-pointers (1.86 per game) and 11th in minutes (29.7 per game).

Struggles On Defense

Although Sacramento State has forced opponents into 19.96 turnovers per game, the team has struggled badly at limiting easy looks at the basket for the opposition.

In fact, opponents are now shooting 52.1 percent (686-1316) from the field against Sacramento State, easily the worst mark in the Big Sky. That includes a season-high 66.7 percent from both Weber State (30-45) and Northern Arizona (32-48). NAU shot better than .600 against the Hornets in both of the teams' meetings (.646 in Flagstaff earlier this year). All told, opponents have shot better than .600 on six occasions, including Boise State (.632), Illinois State (.607) and Idaho State (.615).

Thirteen opponents have shot better than 50.0 percent from the field, and the Hornets are 0-13 in those games. Beginning with the Boise State game, opponents have combined to shoot .546 (377-691) from the field and .445 (81-182) from beyond the arc over the last 13 games.

Milestones For Bausley

Earlier this season, senior forward Alex Bausley (pronounced BOZ-lee) became just the third Sacramento State player to reach the 1,000 point plateau during the team's Div. I era (1991-pres.). Damond Edwards (1,197 points; 1992-97) and Michael Boyd (1,064 points; 1993-97) are the other Hornets who have accomplished the feat. In program history, Bausley became the sixth player to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

With six rebounds against Portland State, he became the program's Div. I leader in career rebounds, surpassing Michael Boyd's record of 507. Among Div. I program leaders, Bausley is now first in rebounds (528), second in points (1,097) and steals (179), and fifth in assists (159).

A first team all-Big Sky selection in 2005-06 and this year's team captain, Bausley is currently averaging 13.2 points, 5.5 rebounds, 2.3 assists and 2.6 steals per game while shooting 42.1 percent (123-292) from the field. He has scored in double figures 17 times this year, and 57 times during his four-year career. His 62 steals are now tied for the 10th best mark in the nation.

The Los Angeles native, and graduate of Fairfax High School (the same high school that head coach Jerome Jenkins graduated) has raised his scoring average every year, from 2.9 ppg as a freshman, 10.4 ppg as a sophomore, and 13.6 last season. The biggest difference for Bausley occurred during the offseason between his freshman and sophomore seasons, when he shed 35 pounds of weight.

Leath For Three

One of the Hornets' main perimeter shooters, Sacramento State sophomore shooting guard Loren Leath is among team leaders in points (329), points per game (13.7), field goals (123), field goals attempted (346), three-pointers (64) and three-pointers attempted (177). He has scored at least 21 points in two of the last four games, and the Hornets are 4-1 when he tallies at least 20 points this year.

Head coach Jerome Jenkins gives Leath the green light at all times and Leath has not been shy about shooting the ball, attempting at least 10 shots in all but four games. An honorable mention all-Big Sky selection last season after setting the Sacramento State Div. I record for most points by a freshman, Leath has made at least two three-pointers in all but seven games this season. He is fifth in the Big Sky (all games) with an average of 2.67 treys per game and tied for 11th in scoring (13.7 ppg).

Struggle on the Boards

Through the early part of the season, it appeared Sacramento State had corrected its glaring rebounding problem that saw the team finish last in the Big Sky in 2005-06 with a rebounding disparity of -5.9 per game. In fact, through the team's first six games this season, the Hornets were outrebounding the opposition by 2.3 rebounds per game.

However, the rebounding problems have been in full swing the past two months as the Hornets have outrebounded just one opponent in the last 18 games. Against the Big Sky, the Hornets are being outrebounded by more than 12 boards per game (40.8-28.7). That includes ridiculous rebounding disparities of 49-18 vs. Idaho State, 51-32 vs. Portland State, and 37-21 at Northern Arizona.

Remember The Alamo

One glaring weakness for Sacramento State over the years has been the lack of productivity from the team's centers. The Hornets had four players start at center last season, and those four combined to average a grand total of 4.6 points and 5.8 rebounds per game.

The big man production has changed this year with the addition of junior Angel Alamo. A transfer from Riverside Community College, Alamo is averaging 10.1 points and 6.5 rebounds per game. He has led or shared the team lead in rebounding 14 times this season. That includes last Wednesday at home against Northern Colorado in which he posted his second double-double of the season with 19 points and 10 rebounds.

The Brooklyn native has been playing his basketball of the season recently, scoring at least 11 points in five of the last seven games. During that stretch, he is averaging 12.3 points while shooting 55.7 percent (34-61) from the field.

Overall, Alamo is shooting 49.2 percent (94-191) from the field and 80.3 percent (53-66) from the free throw line. Of his 156 rebounds, a team-high 61 have come on the offensive glass. Alamo's free throw percentage is the seventh best mark in the Big Sky, and he ranks among the conference's top 10 players (all games) in four different categories.

Last Two Meetings at Montana State

Sacramento State blew a 17-point first half lead on the way to a 75-70 loss at Montana State in the regular season finale on Feb. 27, 2006 at Worthington Arena.

The Hornets led, 31-14, with 5:39 remaining in the first half, but could not hold the lead down the stretch. Montana State had already cut the deficit to eight points by halftime and the Hornets went 5-for-17 (.294) the field and 2-for-9 (.222) from the free-throw line over the final 8:25 of the second half to aid the Bobcats' come-from-behind victory. After Davon Roberts knocked down two free throws to put Sacramento State up 12 points (56-44) with 8:26 to play, MSU closed the game on a 31-14 run.

Sacramento State shot a season-low 48.3 percent (14-29) from the free-throw line, went just 6-of-24 (25.0 percent) from beyond the three-point arc and shot 35.3 percent (12-34) from the field in the second half. The Hornets were outscored in the second half by a 48-35 margin.

Alex Bausley scored a game-high 16 points to lead four Hornets in double figures as Sacramento State knocked off Montana State, 71-70, in the Big Sky Tournament Quarterfinals on March 4, 2006.

With the Hornets trailing, 60-59, with 3:10 to play, Sacramento State received back-to-back three-pointers from Loren Leath and Clark Woods to give the team its largest lead of the game at five points (65-60) with 2:17 to play. Montana State cut the lead to two points on three occasions, but a jumper from Bausley (0:42) and four clutch free throws from DaShawn Freeman at the 0:11 second mark and at the 0:06 mark put the game away. Montana State's Ja'Ron Jefferson hit a three-pointer at the buzzer the margin of victory.

Joining Bausley in double figures for the Hornets were Leath (13 points, four rebounds), Freeman (12 points, five assists and two steals) and Justin Williams (season-high 12 points).
