A Brief Preview

After dropping back-to-back road games last week to the Montana schools, the Sacramento State men's basketball squad (8-17, 3-9) plays the first of two remaining home games this Wednesday, Feb. 14, vs. Montana State at 7:05 p.m. The game against Montana State will mark the second meeting in six days between the two schools as the Hornets lost in Bozeman, Mont., last week by the score of 74-59.

With just four games remaining on the regular season schedule, Sacramento State still has an outside shot of reaching the Big Sky Tournament for the fifth straight year. The top six teams in the nine-member league reach the league's postseason event, and the Hornets are currently eighth, three games behind sixth-place Portland State. Sacramento State, Montana and Eastern Washington entered the season as the only three Big Sky teams to reach the postseason each of the last four years, and that streak could end for both the Hornets and Eagles. Montana is just one victory shy of clinching its fifth straight appearance.

In order for the Hornets to reach the tournament, they would have to win their remaining four games, hope that Portland State (7-7) loses its final two games, and need seventh-place Eastern Washington (6-8) to win no more than one of its two remaining games. The Hornets play both Portland State and Eastern Washington on the road next week, having already defeated Portland State at home earlier this season. Should all three teams finish with 7-9 records, Sacramento State would win the tiebreaker by virtue of having a better combined head-to-head record among the three teams. If the Hornets lose one of their final four games, they would be eliminated from playoff contention.

As tough a scenario as that may sound, Sacramento State also closes the year at home against the current first-place team in the conference (Weber State on March 26). In addition, the Hornets have lost nine of their last 10 games after beginning the conference season with a 2-1 record. Since that point, however, the Hornets have struggled offensively (shooting .387), defensively (allowing the opposition to shoot .532) and in the rebounding department (-11.2 rebounding disparity per game) over the team's last 10 contests.

Montana State (10-15, 7-5 Big Sky) has played well during the conference season under first-year head coach Brad Huse. The Bobcats have won six of their last eight games, including last Thursday's 15-point victory at home over the Hornets. However, Montana State has struggled on the road posting a 3-9 record away from the friendly confines, including four losses in their last five road games. In addition, the Hornets had won six consecutive games against Montana State in Sacramento until a heartbreaking 78-75 loss last season. The Bobcats own an 18-10 record in the all-time series between the two teams.

Wednesday's game will be broadcast live on hornetsports.com and bigskytv.org with Steve McElroy calling all the action. McElroy is in his 10th season as radio voice of Hornet basketball.

Meet The Coach

The second-longest tenured coach in the Big Sky Conference (trailing only Northern Arizona's Mike Adras), Jerome Jenkins is currently in his seventh season at the helm of the Sacramento State basketball program. The basketball veteran is the 12th head coach in the 59-year history of the program. Since taking over a struggling program that had averaged just 4.1 wins per year from the team's first season of Div. I play (1991-92) until his hiring, Jenkins has transformed the program into one that consistently challenges for the Big Sky title and has averaged 11.0 wins per season during his tenure.

In fact, Sacramento State is one of just three teams that have reached the Big Sky Tournament each of the last four years (Montana and Eastern Washington are the others). This comes after the Hornets failed to reach the Big Sky's postseason event during each of the team's first six years in the league (1996-pres.).

The Hornets have seen their Big Sky record substantially improve under Jenkins' guidance: 2-14 in 2000-01; 3-11 in 2001-02; 5-9 in 2002-03; 7-7 in 2003-04; 8-6 in 2004-05, and finally 5-9 last year after losing six games by five points or less. In addition, the Hornets' overall record has continued to rise during his tenure (5-22 in 2000-01, 9-19 in 2001-02, 12-17 in 2002-03, 13-15 in 2003-04, 12-16 in 2004-05, and 15-15 last year).

The program has graduated 10 players during Jenkins' tenure, a dramatic improvement from the years prior to his arrival. In fact, two additional players (Chris Lange and Zane Beekman) are on pace to graduate this spring.

The Hornets have reached the Big Sky Tournament semifinals twice under Jenkins, and hosted tournament quarterfinal games in 2003-04 and 2004-05. Last year, Sacramento State upset Montana State in Bozeman in the quarters before falling to regular-season champion Northern Arizona in the semis.

The 39-year old coach came to Sacramento State prior to the 1999-2000 season and served as the team's top assistant coach that year. Jenkins previously had worked two seasons as an assistant at Eastern Washington (1997-99). Prior to working at EWU, he spent four years at Diablo Valley College, where he was an assistant coach (1993-95) and associate head coach (1995-97).

A native of Los Angeles, Jenkins was an all-conference point guard at L.A. City College as a freshman before playing his sophomore season at Southwestern Oregon CC. He then transferred to Regis University in Denver, Colo., where he was a two-time all-conference selection.

A Look At The Last Game

Four Bobcats scored in double figures, led by Casey Durham's game-high 20 points, as Montana State defeated Sacramento State, 74-59, last Thursday at Worthington Arena.

Sacramento State shot below .400 for the fourth consecutive game, finishing 34.5 percent (20-58) from the field and 20.0 percent (3-15) from beyond the arc. The Hornets, who faced an early 13-0 deficit before climbing back to take an 18-14 lead, were outrebounded, 44-35. Montana State shot 43.4 percent (23-53) from the field and a blistering 52.6 percent (10-of-19) from beyond the three-point arc.

A big difference in the game was three-pointers as Montana State buried 6-of-12 from beyond the arc in the first half, and 4-of-7 in the second half. Conversely, Sacramento State again struggled from long range, as the team's three three-pointers tied a season low. The Hornets have now shot .300 or worse from the three-point line four consecutive games, shooting .247 (22-89) over that span.

Durham scored 17 of Montana State's 39 first-half points as the Bobcats went into the halftime with a 39-29 lead. After the Hornets took their largest lead of the game at 22-18, MSU closed the final 6:40 of the first half on a 21-7 run. Durham had three three-pointers during the run.

Sacramento State would get no closer than within eight points of Montana State's lead in the second half as the Bobcats used a 15-4 run during the latter stages of the period to put the game away. Joining Durham in double figures for Montana State were Carlos Taylor (16), Ted Morris (12) and Mecklen Davis (12).

The Hornets had two players score in double digits, comprised of senior Haron Hargrave (12 points, game-high six steals) and junior Angel Alamo (10 points, two blocked shots). Junior Davon Roberts finished with eight points, seven rebounds, two blocked shots and two steals in 17 minutes.

New Floor General

After practicing with the team (but seeing no game action) for a year and a half, junior point guard Kris Groce (pronounced GROSS) made his debut on Jan. 4 against Montana, and helped the Hornets to a victory by tallying 10 assists, the most by a Sacramento State player this year.

Through the first six games of the season while nursing an ankle he sprained in practice three days before his debut, Groce got off to a slow start, averaging just 4.5 points, 1.2 rebounds and 4.2 assists while shooting 28.6 percent from the field.

However, over the last five games, Groce has been the team's leading scorer. During the five-game stretch, Groce is averaging 15.0 points, 3.0 rebounds and 4.8 assists while getting to the free throw line 24 times, converting 18 of those attempts (.750). He had scored at least 12 points in four straight games until finishing with seven at Montana State last Thursday.

Overall, the team's only true point guard is now averaging 9.3 points, 2.0 rebounds and 4.5 assists while averaging 28.7 minutes per game.

Standing all of 5-10 and weighing 150 pounds, Groce transferred from the University of Hawai'i during the summer of 2005, and sat out last year while redshirting because of NCAA transfer rules. He was academically ineligible during this year's fall semester.

372 And Counting

Sacramento State has made at least one three-pointer in 372 consecutive games, a streak which dates back 13 years. The last time the Hornets did not make a three-pointer occurred on Nov. 28, 1993, when the team went 0-for-6 from beyond the arc in an 85-57 loss at Montana State.

Book It

Consistently one of the most athletic teams in the Big Sky, Sacramento State has led the conference in steals every year since Jerome Jenkins became head coach of the program in 2000-01 (a span of six consecutive years). That won't change this season as the team is easily leading the conference with 10.48 steals per game. That mark is on pace to break the program record of 9.96, set in both 2000-01 and 2004-05. The Hornets have forced at least 19 turnovers on 16 occasions this year, and the team leads the Big Sky in turnover margin at +5.76 per game.

Lineup Shuffle

Sacramento State head coach Jerome Jenkins has used a different starting lineup seven times in the last 10 games trying to find a good combination of players to right the ship.

All 13 players that have appeared in a Sacramento State uniform have started at least one game this season. Overall, Jenkins has used 11 different starting lineups. Senior Alex Bausley has been the only constant in the lineup, starting all 25 games this season.

Simple Math

• Sacramento State's win over Portland State marked the first time all season the Hornets had defeated an opponent that entered the game with a record above .500. Sacramento State is currently 1-6 against teams above .500, and 1-5 against teams at the .500 mark.

• Conversely, the Hornets are 6-6 against opponents entering the game with a sub-.500 record.

• Sacramento State is 7-5 this season when it has limited its opposition to 80 points or less, and 1-12 when opponents score more than 80 points.

• The Hornets are 0-13 when scoring under 74 points.

• The Hornets are a perfect 8-0 when leading or tied with 5:00 remaining, and 8-1 when tied or leading with 10:00 left in the second half. Conversely, the team has yet to win a game (0-17) when trailing with five minutes remaining.

• Sacramento State is 0-13 when opponents shoot better than 50.0 percent from the field, and 8-4 when limiting the opposition to a field goal percentage of .500 or below.

Woods To Redshirt

After being projected as the team's starting shooting guard prior to the season by head coach Jerome Jenkins, senior Clark Woods is now redshirting this season with a fractured knee. Woods played sparingly in two games (Nov. 12 at New Mexico, Nov. 14 vs. USF) before doctors decided to shut him down the rest of the season because of the injury. Woods averaged 7.3 points per game last season, including starting each of the team's last 17 games.

A Close Game, What's That?

With the exception of four games that have been decided by four points or less (the Hornets are 3-1 in those contests), every other Sacramento State game this season has been decided by at least seven points. Sixteen of the team's 17 losses have come by seven points or worse, and five of the eight wins have come by at least eight points. This comes in sharp contrast to last season when the Hornets finished 5-8 in games decided by five points or less.

Second Half Woes

One major reason for the Hornets' slide over the last 10 games has been the team's inability to put together a good second half. Despite keeping things close at halftime of nearly every game, Sacramento State has struggled mightily in the second stanza. Over the last 10 games, opponents have combined to shoot 58.7 percent (145-247) from the field in the second half, with six of those teams shooting better than 60.0 percent. Conversely, the Hornets have shot 36.0 percent (123-342) in the second half, while failing to shoot anything better than 42.5 percent in any of the 10 games.

Star-Grave

After missing the first three games of the season, senior combo guard Haron Hargrave has consistently been one the team's top scorers, currently averaging 13.3 points. In addition, he is averaging 5.18 trips to the free throw line per game, converting on 81.6 percent (93-114) from the charity stripe.

Including his last second, buzzer beating three-pointer in the Hornets' overtime win against Pacific, the Queens, N.Y., native has scored in double figures 14 times and has led the team in scoring nine times. That also consists of four 20-point games, including a career-high 31 at Denver.

However, like most of the team, Hargrave has struggled from the field over the last 10 games, shooting 27.9 percent (28-97) and 28.6 (16-56) from beyond the arc over that span. That includes .237 (9-38) from the field over the last four games.

Among Big Sky leaders (all games), Hargrave is third in free throw percentage (.816), fourth in steals (1.68 spg), ninth in three-pointers (1.82 per game) and 12th in minutes (29.7 per game).

Struggles On Defense

Although Sacramento State has forced opponents into 19.92 turnovers per game, the team has struggled badly at limiting easy looks at the basket for the opposition.

In fact, opponents are shooting 51.8 percent (709-1369) from the field against Sacramento State, easily the worst mark in the Big Sky. That includes a season-high 66.7 percent from both Weber State (30-45) and Northern Arizona (32-48). NAU shot better than .600 against the Hornets in both of the teams' meetings (.646 in Flagstaff earlier this year).

All told, opponents have shot better than .600 on six occasions, including Boise State (.632), Illinois State (.607) and Idaho State (.615). Thirteen opponents have shot better than 50.0 percent from the field, and the Hornets are 0-13 in those games.

Milestones For Bausley

Earlier this season, senior forward Alex Bausley (pronounced BOZ-lee) became just the third Sacramento State player to reach the 1,000 point plateau during the team's Div. I era (1991-pres.). Damond Edwards (1,197 points; 1992-97) and Michael Boyd (1,064 points; 1993-97) are the other Hornets who have accomplished the feat. In program history, Bausley became the sixth player to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

With six rebounds against Portland State, he became the program's Div. I leader in career rebounds, surpassing Michael Boyd's record of 507. Among Div. I program leaders, Bausley is now first in rebounds (533), second in points (1,102) and steals (179), and fifth in assists (159).

A first team all-Big Sky selection in 2005-06 and this year's team captain, Bausley is currently averaging 12.8 points, 5.5 rebounds, 2.2 assists and 2.5 steals per game while shooting 41.8 percent (125-299) from the field. He has scored in double figures 17 times this year, and 57 times during his four-year career. His 62 steals are the second highest total in the Big Sky and tied for the 15th best mark in the nation.

The Los Angeles native, and graduate of Fairfax High School (the same high school that head coach Jerome Jenkins graduated) has raised his scoring average every year, from 2.9 ppg as a freshman, 10.4 ppg as a sophomore, and 13.6 last season. The biggest difference for Bausley occurred during the offseason between his freshman and sophomore seasons, when he shed 35 pounds of weight.

Leath For Three

One of the Hornets' main perimeter shooters, Sacramento State sophomore shooting guard Loren Leath is among team leaders in points (336), points per game (13.4), field goals (126), field goals attempted (353), three-pointers (65) and three-pointers attempted (181). He has scored at least 21 points in two of the last five games, and the Hornets are 4-1 when he tallies at least 20 points this year.

Head coach Jerome Jenkins gives Leath the green light at all times and Leath has not been shy about shooting the ball, attempting at least 10 shots in all but five games. He has hoised at least 15 shots on 11 occasions. An honorable mention all-Big Sky selection last season after setting the Sacramento State Div. I record for most points by a freshman, Leath is currently fourth in the Big Sky (all games) with an average of 2.60 treys per game and tied for 12th in scoring (13.4 ppg).

Struggle on the Boards

Through the early part of the season, it appeared Sacramento State had corrected its glaring rebounding problem that saw the team finish last in the Big Sky in 2005-06 with a rebounding disparity of -5.9 per game. In fact, through the team's first six games this season, the Hornets were outrebounding the opposition by 2.3 rebounds per game.

However, the rebounding problems have been in full swing the past 10 weeks as the Hornets have outrebounded just one opponent in the last 19 games. Against the Big Sky, the Hornets are being outrebounded by nearly 12 boards per game (41.1-29.3). That includes ridiculous rebounding disparities of 49-18 vs. Idaho State, 51-32 vs. Portland State, and 37-21 at Northern Arizona.

Remember The Alamo

One glaring weakness for Sacramento State over the years has been the lack of productivity from the team's centers. The Hornets had four players start at center last season, and those four combined to average a grand total of 4.6 points and 5.8 rebounds per game.

The big man production has changed this year with the addition of junior Angel Alamo. A transfer from Riverside Community College, Alamo is averaging 10.1 points and 6.4 rebounds per game. He has led or shared the team lead in rebounding 14 times this season. That includes the Hornet's home loss to Northern Colorado in which he posted his second double-double of the season with 19 points and 10 rebounds.

The Brooklyn native has scored in double figures six times in the last eight games, shooting 54.3 percent (38-70) from the field over that span.

Overall, Alamo is shooting 49.0 percent (98-200) from the field and 80.9 percent (55-68) from the free throw line. Of his 160 rebounds, a team-high 63 have come on the offensive glass. Alamo's free throw percentage is the seventh best mark in the Big Sky, and he ranks among the conference's top 10 players (all games) in four different categories, including third in offensive rebounding (2.52 rpg).

Last Two Meetings of 2005-06 vs. Montana State

Sacramento State blew a 17-point first half lead on the way to a 75-70 loss at Montana State in the regular season finale on Feb. 27, 2006 at Worthington Arena.

The Hornets led, 31-14, with 5:39 remaining in the first half, but could not hold the lead down the stretch. Montana State had already cut the deficit to eight points by halftime and the Hornets went 5-for-17 (.294) the field and 2-for-9 (.222) from the free-throw line over the final 8:25 of the second half to aid the Bobcats' come-from-behind victory. After Davon Roberts knocked down two free throws to put Sacramento State up 12 points (56-44) with 8:26 to play, MSU closed the game on a 31-14 run.

Sacramento State shot a season-low 48.3 percent (14-29) from the free-throw line, went just 6-of-24 (25.0 percent) from beyond the three-point arc and shot 35.3 percent (12-34) from the field in the second half. The Hornets were outscored in the second half by a 48-35 margin.

Alex Bausley scored a game-high 16 points to lead four Hornets in double figures as Sacramento State knocked off Montana State, 71-70, in the Big Sky Tournament Quarterfinals on March 4, 2006.

With the Hornets trailing, 60-59, with 3:10 to play, Sacramento State received back-to-back three-pointers from Loren Leath and Clark Woods to give the team its largest lead of the game at five points (65-60) with 2:17 to play. Montana State cut the lead to two points on three occasions, but a jumper from Bausley (0:42) and four clutch free throws from DaShawn Freeman at the 0:11 second mark and at the 0:06 mark put the game away. Montana State's Ja'Ron Jefferson hit a three-pointer at the buzzer the margin of victory.

Joining Bausley in double figures for the Hornets were Leath (13 points, four rebounds), Freeman (12 points, five assists and two steals) and Justin Williams (season-high 12 points).
