A Brief Preview

In the midst of a season long five-game losing streak, the Sacramento State men's basketball squad (7-13, 2-5) will play the second of a back-to-back game scenario as the Hornets fell to Eastern Washington yesterday evening. The Green and Gold will face Portland State tonight inside the Hornets Nest at 7:05 p.m. Sacramento State is one of two Big Sky Conference teams (Weber State) that will play a pair of back-to-back conference games this season, including consecutive contests at Montana and Montana State on Feb. 7-8. Tonight's game against Portland State will mark the second of a season long three-game homestand as the Hornets return to the Nest on Wednesday, Jan. 31, against Northern Colorado.

If the Hornets don't right the ship soon, they could find themselves in danger of missing the Big Sky Tournament for the first time in five years. Sacramento State is one of three teams (Montana, Eastern Washington) in the Big Sky to make the league's postseason tournament each of the last four years. The top six teams in the nine-member league advance to the tournament, and the Hornets are currently in eighth place, 2.0 games back of sixth place. Portland State (13-8 overall) sits in the seventh spot with a 4-4 league mark.

Since beating Northern Colorado on Dec. 30 and Montana on Jan. 4 to improve to 2-1 in the Big Sky, the Hornets have lost each of their last four conference games by an average of 18.3 points per game. Even more alarming is the fact the Hornets have dropped three straight at home, a place they usually thrive. The Hornets' last victory came at home against Montana 22 days ago.

During the losing streak, opponents are shooting a robust 58.4 percent (149-255) from the field, .436 (24-55) from the three-point line, and are outrebounding the Hornets by more than 12 rebounds per game (42.6-30.2). Conversely, Sacramento State is shooting just 37.3 percent (128-343) over the last five games, and 27.6 percent (35-127) from beyond the arc. Including a season-low .311 mark at Cal Poly, the Hornets have shot worse than 37.0 percent in four of the five games after shooting better than .370 in 11 of the first 15 games of the season.

Tonight will mark the first meeting of the season between Sacramento State and Portland State. The Hornets swept both meetings between the two teams last year and are 8-14 all time against the Vikings. Sacramento State has won three of the last four meetings with Portland State inside the Hornets Nest, including last year's 76-60 victory. The Vikings, who have won two straight, have not played since last Saturday's 83-78 home victory over Northern Colorado. Portland State is 3-5 on the road this year, including 1-2 against Big Sky opposition.

Tonight's game will be broadcast live on KSAC 1240 AM, hornetsports.com and bigskytv.org with Steve McElroy calling all the action. McElroy returns for his 10th season as radio voice of Hornet basketball.

Meet The Coach

The second-longest tenured coach in the Big Sky Conference (trailing only Northern Arizona's Mike Adras), Jerome Jenkins is currently in his seventh season at the helm of the Sacramento State basketball program. The basketball veteran is the 12th head coach in the 59-year history of the program. Since taking over a struggling program that had averaged just 4.1 wins per year from the team's first season of Div. I play (1991-92) until his hiring, Jenkins has transformed the program into one that consistently challenges for the Big Sky title and has averaged 11.0 wins per season during his tenure.

In fact, Sacramento State is one of just three teams that have reached the Big Sky Tournament each of the last four years (Montana and Eastern Washington are the others). This comes after the Hornets failed to reach the Big Sky's postseason event during each of the team's first six years in the league (1996-pres.).

The Hornets have seen their Big Sky record substantially improve under Jenkins' guidance: 2-14 in 2000-01; 3-11 in 2001-02; 5-9 in 2002-03; 7-7 in 2003-04; 8-6 in 2004-05, and finally 5-9 last year after losing six games by five points or less. In addition, the Hornets' overall record has continued to rise during his tenure (5-22 in 2000-01, 9-19 in 2001-02, 12-17 in 2002-03, 13-15 in 2003-04, 12-16 in 2004-05, and 15-15 last year).

The program has graduated 10 players during Jenkins' tenure, a dramatic improvement from the years prior to his arrival. In fact, three additional players (Chris Lange, Zane Beekman and Jason Harris) are on pace to graduate in 2007.

The Hornets have reached the Big Sky Tournament semifinals twice under Jenkins, and hosted tournament quarterfinal games in 2003-04 and 2004-05. Last year, Sacramento State upset Montana State in Bozeman in the quarters before falling to regular-season champion Northern Arizona in the semis.

The 39-year old coach came to Sacramento State prior to the 1999-2000 season and served as the team's top assistant coach that year. Jenkins previously had worked two seasons as an assistant at Eastern Washington (1997-99). Prior to working at EWU, he spent four years at Diablo Valley College, where he was an assistant coach (1993-95) and associate head coach (1995-97).

A native of Los Angeles, Jenkins was an all-conference point guard at L.A. City College as a freshman before playing his sophomore season at Southwestern Oregon CC. He then transferred to Regis University in Denver, Colo., where he was a two-time all-conference selection.

A Look At The Last Game

Sophomore Rodney Stuckey scored 31 points, including 15-of-16 from the free throw line, to lead Eastern Washington to a 100-85 victory over Sacramento State Thursday evening at the Nest.

The Hornets blew a 15-point first half lead (33-18 with 9:17 left), as Eastern Washington closed the first stanza on a 29-14 run to tie the score at halftime, 47-47. Both teams played fairly even during the first 10 minutes of the second half before the Eagles used a 12-2 run to take an 86-70 lead with 6:03 remaining. The Hornets got no closer than within 11 points of EWU's lead the rest of the way.

Sacramento State was whistled for 18 fouls in the second half, and Eastern Washington took advantage, converting 21-of-27 free throws. The Eagles finished the game 32-of-41 (.780) from the charity stripe, and a blazing 34-of-58 (.586) from the field. The Eagles, who did not hit a three-pointer during the entire contest, shot 66.7 percent (16-24) from the floor in the second half, while finishing the game with a 45-30 rebounding advantage.

Three Hornets scored in double figures, led by senior Alex Bausley's 23 points, five rebounds, five assists and six steals. The fourth-year senior, who shot 10-of-14 from the field, is now two rebounds shy of breaking the Sacramento State Div. I (1990-pres.) career record for rebounds.

Joining Bausley in double figures for the Hornets were sophomore Loren Leath (16) and junior Angel Alamo (11 points). Junior Davon Roberts added nine points, five rebounds and a career-high tying three blocked shots. Sacramento State committed just seven turnovers and shot well from the field (.459, 34-74), but could not overcome its defensive deficiencies.

New Floor General

After practicing with the team (but seeing no game action) the last year and a half, junior point guard Kris Groce (pronounced GROSS) made his Hornet debut on Jan. 4 against Montana. Effectively running the Sacramento State offense for all but 10 minutes during the Montana game, Groce finished with five points, 10 assists and three steals. The 10 assists were two more than any Hornet had posted in a game this season.

Unfortunately for Gross and the Hornets, he badly sprained his right ankle in practice three days before the Montana game, and it has affected

Hornets Under Jenkins

Under head coach Jerome Jenkins, the Hornets are one of just three teams that have reached the Big Sky Conference Tournament each of the last four years (Montana and Eastern Washington are the others). The top six teams in the nine-member league advance to the postseason.

his play. Through six games, Groce is averaging 4.5 points, 4.2 assists and 1.2 rebounds per game while shooting just 28.6 percent (10-35) from the field. The ankle has affected his lift on jump shots and his ability to cut and drive to the hole.

Standing 5-10 and weighing 150 pounds, Groce transferred from the University of Hawai'i during the summer of 2005, and sat out last year while redshirting because of NCAA transfer rules. He was academically ineligible during this year's fall semester.

Near Perfection

Including a stretch of seven consecutive games where he did not miss a field goal attempt, junior forward Davon Roberts is now shooting 80.8 percent (21-26) from the field over his last nine games. If he had enough attempts to qualify, Roberts' season field goal percentage of .651 (41-63) would easily lead the Big Sky Conference.

A 6-6, 205-pound power forward with tremendous athletic ability, Roberts gets a share of his buckets on putbacks after an offensive rebound. In fact, 43 of Roberts' 71 rebounds this season have come on the offensive glass.

He is currently on pace to shatter the Hornet Div. I (1991-pres.) record for season field goal percentage (.559), a mark he set last season.

367 And Counting

Sacramento State has made at least one three-pointer in 367 consecutive games, a streak which dates back 13 years. The last time the Hornets did not make a three-pointer occurred on Nov. 28, 1993, when the team went 0-for-6 from beyond the arc in an 85-57 loss at Montana State.

Book It

Consistently one of the most athletic teams in the Big Sky, Sacramento State has led the Big Sky Conference in steals every year since Jerome Jenkins became head coach of the program in 2000-01 (a span of six consecutive years). That doesn't figure to change this season as the team is easily leading the conference with 10.65 steals per game. That mark is on pace to break the program record of 9.96, set in both 2000-01 and 2004-05.

The Hornets have forced at least 19 turnovers in five of the last eight games and 13 times overall. That includes opponents turning the ball over at least 20 times on 11 occasions. Sacramento State now leads the Big Sky in turnover margin at +5.70 per game. The next closest team in the Big Sky is Portland State at +2.81.

Rotating Lineups

Sacramento State head coach Jerome Jenkins has used a different starting lineup in four of the last five games trying to find a good combination of players to right the ship. In the Hornets' last two games against Cal Poly and Eastern Washington, Jenkins inserted little-used Curtis Harrison at center and freshman point guard Alonzo Young into the starting lineup for the first time all season.

With Harrison and Young making their first starts of the year, 11 of the team's 12 players have now started at least one game this season. Senior forward Alex Bausley has been the only constant in the starting lineup every games this year.

Jenkins has used eight different starting lineups this season, including the fivesome of Bausley, Angel Alamo, Haron Hargrave, Rod Adams and Loren Leath producing a 4-4 record.

Simple Math

- Sacramento State is 7-3 this season when it has limited its opposition to 80 points or less, and 0-10 when opponents score more than 80 points.
- The Hornets are 0-10 when scoring under 74 points.
- The Hornets are undefeated (7-0) when leading or tied with 10:00 and 5:00 remaining in the second half. Conversely, the team is 0-13 when trailing at those two points of the game.
- The Hornets are 6-3 against teams that entered the game with a sub-.500 record.
- Conversely, the Hornets are 0-5 against teams with records better than .500. Louisville, Long Beach State, Boise State, Northern Arizona and Eastern Washington were all at the .500 mark prior to defeating the Hornets. The team's only win against a .500 team was the season-opening victory against Bethany when both teams were 0-0.
- Sacramento State is 0-11 when opponents shoot better than 50.0 percent from the field.
- The Hornets are 7-2 when limiting the opposition to a field goal percentage of .500 or below.

Homecourt Advantage

Including a 5-4 mark at home this season, Sacramento State is now a combined 32-17 over the last three-plus years inside the friendly confines. Since Jerome Jenkins took over the head coaching duties prior to the 2000-01 season, Sacramento State is 52-35 inside the Hornets Nest.

Woods To Redshirt

After being projected as the team's starting shooting guard prior to the season by head coach Jerome Jenkins, senior Clark Woods is now redshirting this season with a fractured knee. Woods played sparingly in two games (Nov. 12 at New Mexico, Nov. 14 vs. USF) before doctors decided to shut him down the rest of the season because of the injury. Woods averaged 7.3 points per game last season, including starting each of the team's last 17 games.

A Close Game, What's That?

With the exception of a two-point, overtime victory over Pacific and a four-point win at Northern Colorado, every other Sacramento State game this season has been decided by at least eight points. All 13 losses have come by at least nine points, and five of the seven wins have come by eight points or better. This comes in sharp contrast to last season when the Hornets finished 5-8 in games decided by five points or less.

Star-Grave

After missing the first three games of the season, senior combo guard Haron Hargrave has been the team's top scorer, currently averaging 14.2 points. In addition, he is averaging 4.8 trips to the free throw line per game, converting on 79.3 percent (65-82) from the charity stripe.

Including his last second, buzzer beating three-pointer in the Hornets' overtime win against Pacific, the Queens, N.Y., native has scored in double figures 11 times and has led the team in scoring seven times in the last 11 games. That also features four 20-point games, including a career-high 31 at Denver when he went 8-of-10 from beyond the three-point arc.

Among Big Sky leaders (all games), Hargrave is fifth in steals (1.47 spg), sixth in three-pointers (2.12 per game), and seventh in free throw percentage (.793), scoring (14.2 ppg) and minutes played (31.4 per game).

Struggles On Defense

Although Sacramento State has forced opponents into 20.3 turnovers per game, the team has struggled badly at limiting easy looks at the basket for the opposition.

In fact, opponents are now shooting 52.7 percent (576-1094) from the field against Sacramento State, easily the worst mark in the Big Sky. That includes a season-high 66.7 percent from both Weber State (30-45) and Northern Arizona (32-48). NAU shot better than .600 against the Hornets in both of the teams' meetings (.646 in Flagstaff earlier this year). All told, opponents have shot better than .600 on five occasions, including Boise State (.632) and Illinois State (.607).

Eleven opponents have shot better than 50.0 percent from the field, and the Hornets are 0-11 in those games. Beginning with the Boise State game, opponents have combined to shoot .569 (267-469) from the field and .455 (55-121) from beyond the arc during the last nine games.

Milestones For Bausley

Earlier this season, senior forward Alex Bausley (pronounced BOZ-lee) became just the third Sacramento State player to reach the 1,000 point plateau during the team's Div. I era (1991-pres.). Damond Edwards (1,197 points; 1992-97) and Michael Boyd (1,064 points; 1993-97) are the other Hornets to have accomplished the feat. In program history, Bausley became the sixth player to reach the 1,000-point plateau.

He needs just one rebound to become the program's Div. I leader in career rebounds as he is currently tied atop the list with Michael Boyd (507). Also among Div. I program leaders, he is second in steals (170), and third in scoring (1,055).

A first team all-Big Sky selection in 2005-06 and this year's team captain, Bausley is currently averaging 13.7 points, 5.6 rebounds, 2.3 assists and 2.7 steals per game while shooting 43.5 percent (108-248) from the field. He has scored in double figures in all but five games this year, and has led the team in scoring six times.

The Los Angeles native, and graduate of Fairfax High School (the same high school that head coach Jerome Jenkins graduated) has raised his scoring average every year, from 2.9 ppg as a freshman, 10.4 ppg as a sophomore, and 13.6 last season. The biggest difference for Bausley occurred during the offseason between his freshman and sophomore years, when he shed 35 pounds of weight.

Leath For Three

One of the Hornets' deadliest shooters from beyond the three-point line, Sacramento State sophomore shooting guard Loren Leath is among team leaders in points (271), points per game (13.6), field goals (100), field goals attempted (287), three-pointers (53) and three-pointers attempted (146). In fact, his 287 field goal attempts are 39 more than any other player on the roster.

Head coach Jerome Jenkins gives Leath the green light at all times and Leath has not been shy about shooting the ball, attempting at least 10 shots in all but three games. An honorable mention all-Big Sky selection last season after setting the Sacramento State Div. I record for most points by a freshman, Leath has made at least two three-pointers in all but four games this season and is fourth in the Big Sky with an average of 2.65 treys per game.

Struggle on the Boards

Through the early portion of the season, it appeared Sacramento State had corrected its glaring rebounding problem that saw the team finish last in the Big Sky in 2005-06 with a rebounding disparity of -5.9 per game. In fact, through the team's first six games this season, the Hornets were outrebounding the opposition by 2.3 rebounds per game.

However, over the last 14 games, the rebounding woes have reared their ugly heads again. During the 14-game stretch, Sacramento State has been outrebounded by 8.2 boards per game. That includes a ridiculous 49-18 disparity at home vs. Idaho State.

Remember The Alamo

One glaring weakness for Sacramento State over the years has been the lack of productivity from the team's centers. The Hornets had four players start at center last season, and those four combined to average a grand total of 4.6 points and 5.8 rebounds per game.

The big man production has changed this year with the addition of junior Angel Alamo. A transfer from Riverside Community College, Alamo is averaging 9.9 points, 6.7 rebounds, 1.1 steals and 0.7 blocked shots per game. He has led or shared the team lead in rebounding in 10 of the last 15 contests, and 12 times overall this season.

Alamo is shooting 47.2 percent (76-161) from the field and 83.6 percent (46-55) from the free throw line. Of his 133 rebounds, a team-high 51 have come on the offensive glass. Alamo's free throw percentage is the second best mark in the Big Sky, and he ranks among the conference's top 10 players in four different categories.

Last Year vs. Portland St. I

Alex Bausley (game-high 21), Haron Hargrave (15), and Loren Leath (15) combined for 51 points to lead Sacramento State to a 76-60 victory over Portland State on Jan. 5, 2006, at the Nest.

Both teams began the game sluggishly, combining for just 10 points during the first nine minutes of the contest. Portland State took its largest lead of the game at 8-4 with 11:33 to play, but a three-pointer from Leath quickly sliced the lead to one point (11:14). The teams exchanged baskets for the next five minutes as a Juma Kamara three-pointer tied things at 18-18 with 6:16 to play. In the middle of that stretch, the Vikings lost their starting point guard Ryan Sommer to a hamstring injury.

Sacramento State used a 17-3 run that spanned exactly eight minutes of both the first and second halves to take a commanding 35-21 lead with 18:14 to play in the game. The Vikings would get no closer than nine points of the Hornets' lead the rest of the way as Sacramento State opened up a lead as large as 23 points (76-53).

Last Year vs. Portland St. II

Clark Woods scored a game-high 16 points and the Hornets outscored Portland State, 13-4, over the final 8:03 to defeat the Vikings, 68-65, on Feb. 4, 2006 at the Stott Center. Sacramento State had been winless (0-10) against the Vikings in Portland.

Trailing, 53-52, Portland State's Tyler Hollist scored on a lay-up to give the Vikings a 54-53 lead and ignite a 9-2 spurt. Ryan Sommer's three-pointer capped the run and gave the Vikings their largest lead of the night at six points (61-55) with 8:03 remaining.

After Josh Neeley hit a jumper to make it 63-57, the Hornets scored eight-straight points with DaShawn Freeman's three-pointer capping the run to give Sacramento State a 65-63 lead with 4:01 remaining in the contest.

Sacramento State would not trail again as the two teams combined for just one field goal over the final four minutes. The Vikings' Anthony Washington made a pair of free throws with 1:43 left to tie the game at 65-65, but Alex Bausley answered with a jumper to put the Hornets back on top, 67-65, with 1:20 remaining.
